CDW Canada Opens New Calgary Hub, Deepening Its Investment in Western Canada

The new Beltline office brings together coworkers and national technology leadership, reinforcing CDW Canada's 30-year commitment to Calgary

Etobicoke ON, Canada - June 22, 2026

CDW Canada, a leading provider of technology solutions and services for business, government, education and healthcare organizations, officially opened its new Calgary office today. The technology hub houses the company's 24/7 National Operations Centre (NOC) and brings together CDW Canada leaders in cybersecurity, managed services and AI, as well as a strong bench of coworkers across multiple departments.

The Calgary office positions CDW Canada as part of the city's growing innovation sector, giving local organizations direct access to technology experts and advisors who can support their transformation projects across cloud, cybersecurity, AI, hybrid infrastructure and modern workspace. Backed by a strong presence across Canada, CDW brings the experience and confidence needed to support complex technology decisions for local organizations with clarity and impact.

"CDW has had roots in Calgary since 1991, and now, with a new office in the heart of downtown Calgary, this marks the next chapter of our investment in this region," said Ginette Adragna, Senior Vice President & General Manager, CDW Canada. "This proximity brings us closer to the customers and partners we work with, enabling stronger collaboration and more localized delivery."

CDW helps organizations move from strategy to execution by addressing common challenges such as integrating complex environments, embedding security across the lifecycle, workshopping AI workflows and optimizing outcomes through ongoing insights and managed services. As organizations accelerate investments in AI and digital transformation, CDW works closely with customers to turn innovation into measurable outcomes - helping move projects beyond pilot stages while addressing real challenges around integration, governance and performance.

Across Alberta, CDW supports organizations in key sectors including energy, financial services, government, education and healthcare, delivering a broad range of solutions spanning hardware, software and integrated services. With a strong partner ecosystem that includes leading technology partners, CDW continues to invest in Western Canada, with an established presence in Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver - playing an active role in advancing how organizations adopt, secure and scale emerging technologies.

"This office is a reflection of the team we've built here. We have some of the most skilled cybersecurity, managed services and AI professionals in the country working out of Calgary, paired with local sellers. CDW is excited to be able to continue supporting customers locally with their technology needs from our new location. It's a proud moment for our team and for everyone who has been part of CDW's journey in this city," said Kevin Santos CDW Canada, Head of Enterprise Sales, Calgary.
